

BASED UPON TABLE
www.basedupon.com

The metallic works of Based Upon, a design team of twin brothers based in East London, has graced Nobu restaurants, designer stores, One Hyde Park and some superyachts. Their latest collection, 'Nature the creator, man the editor', was inspired by the Eastern idea of working with what is natural rather than changing it. This Fragmented Crack Coffee Table in bronze, 150 by 150cm, takes the idea of a fracture deepening over time. Also in the range is 'Stillness Speaks', pictured right, an artwork presented in brass, bronze, graphite and aluminium with an oak frame. This intricate portrait study recreates the artists' experience in the Jama Masjid mosque in Delhi.

L'ORFÈVRERIE D'ANJOU WINE ACCESSORIES

Loire Valley company L'Orfèverie d'Anjou produces a range of bespoke wine accessories for brands such as Taittinger, Bollinger, Moët & Chandon and Rémy Martin. Pictured below is the portable Sosso champagne bucket (from £545), made in pewter with a thin layer of coloured varnish paint in a range of shades applied on top. Also shown right is the S0 High wine stand and ice bucket (£465), made in walnut and highly polished pewter, available in natural wood, black or white. There are plenty of bespoke options available, including your yacht's logo or a message engraved on the products.

ATHENA CHAIR
www.aiveendaly.com

The new Jewels collection from London-based interior designer Aiveen Daly is inspired by haute couture and craftsmanship, in particular the elegance of Lanvin, Dior and Chanel. Each piece of furniture is made according to the principles of high-end fashion, featuring touches such as hand stitching and fine embroidery details. The Athena chair (POA), designed as a dressing-table or dining chair, is upholstered in 'lipstick pink' velvet and trimmed with Grecian-style gold metallic braiding. The company also produces entirely bespoke commissions.
